Too Much Punch for Judy

Research the plot of the play, what characters are there, what is the main storyline?

If you could hot-seat Jo and Judy before and after the crash what questions would you ask them? How would you try to get as much information from both of them as possible?

Would you feel sorry for the girls or do you think they brought it on themselves? How would your questions reflect this?

Draw a storyboard of one of the main storylines from the play – how would you use your voice, movement, gestures, facial expressions to make sure the audience was able to understand exactly what you want to perform?

Design the front cover for the play considering colours, characters and any information you think would be useful to someone picking it up for the first time. Give reasons behind your choices.

How would you create an advert that shows the dangers of drinking and driving? What information from the play would you add to this advert?
